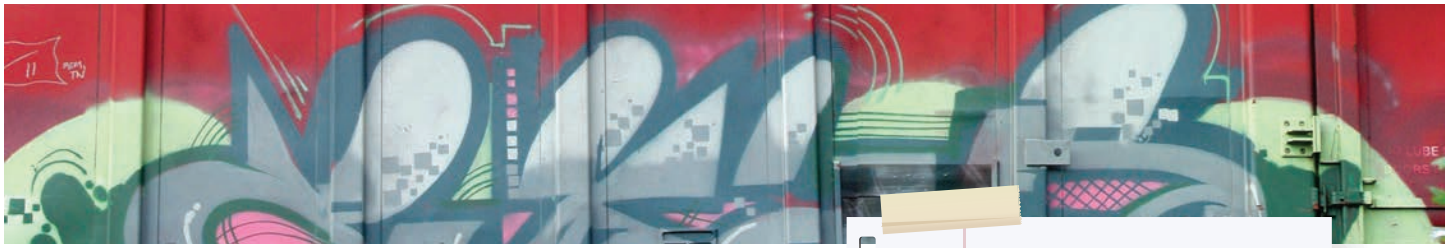
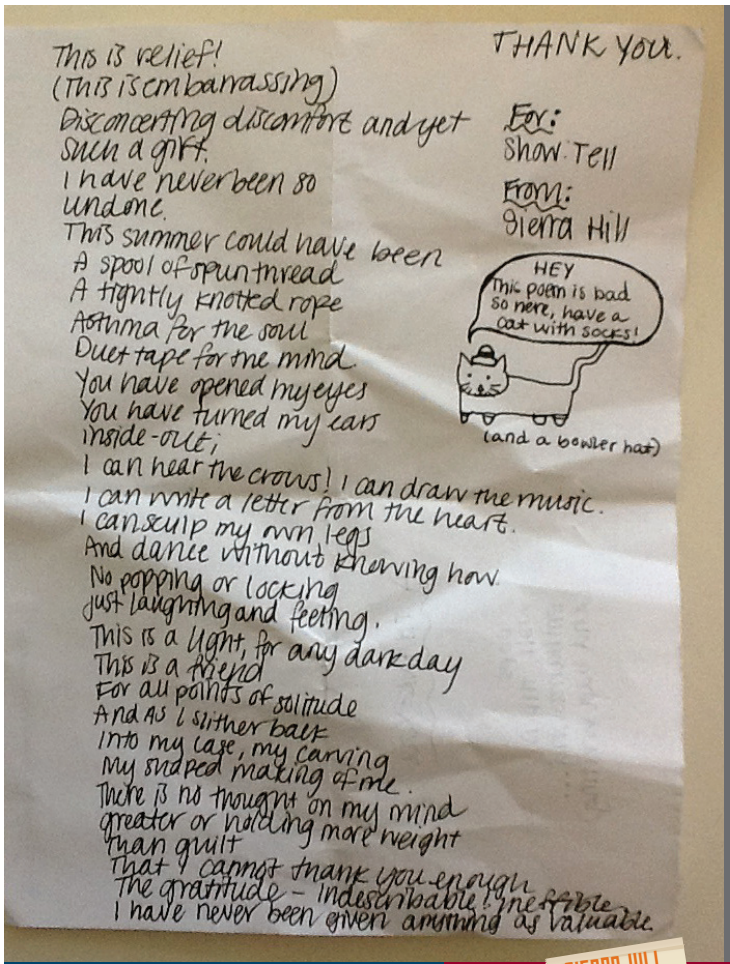
THE WORKSHOP FOR TEEN WRITERS + ARTISTS

June 20 to June 28, 2013





THANK YOU.

For:
Show Tell

From:
Sierra Hill

This is relief!
(This is embarrassing)
Disconcerting discomfort and yet
such a gift.
I have never been so undone.
This summer could have been
A spool of spun thread
A tightly knotted rope
Asthma for the soul
Duct tape for the mind
You have opened my eyes
You have turned my ears
inside-out;
I can hear the crows! I can draw the music.
I can write a letter from the heart.
I can sculp my own legs
And dance without knowing how.
No popping or locking
just laughing and feeling.
This is a light, for any dark day
This is a friend
For all points of solitude
And as I slither back into my cage, my carving
My shaped making of me.
There is no thought on my mind greater or holding more weight than guilt
That I cannot thank you enough
The gratitude – indescribable! ineffable
I have never been given anything as valuable.

HEY
This poem is bad
so here, have a cat with socks!

(and a bowler hat)

Located on Marylhurst University's historic campus (10 miles south of Portland), the workshop is a nine-day seminar where high school students (ages 14-18) receive college-level instruction in creative writing and visual arts. Students meet Thursday, June 20, to Friday, June 28, from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m., taking introductory and advanced seminars in prose and poetry along with visual arts workshops, such as drawing, comic arts, digital writing and book arts. Seminar-style classes are taught by working, professional visual artists and writers of fiction, nonfiction and poetry.
